CAUSES OF LEFT-HANDEDNESS. The question has been much discussed among anatomists, whether the properties of the right hand, in comparison with those of the left, depend on the course of the arteries to it. It is affirmed that the trunk of the artery going to the right arm, passes off from the heart, so as to admit the blood directly and more forcibly into the small vessels of the arm. This is assigning a cause which is unequal to the effect, and present-2 5 4 5 6 7 8 ing altogether too confined a view of the 9 10 11 12 13 14 15 subject; it is a participation in the common error of seeking in the mechanism the cause

Is this taught, or have we this readiness given to us by nature? It must be observed, at the same time, that there is a distinction in the whole right side of the body, and that the left side is 2 3 4 5 6 7 8 not only the weaker in regard to mus-2.10 11 12 13 14 15 | cular strength, but also in its vital or consti-16 17 18 19 20 21 22 tutional properties.
